PREPARE FOR YOUR BIG SELF-DRIVE HOLIDAY WITH “PREP”!

Planning a Big Trip round Australia or a DIY self-drive 4WD expedition into the outback? Not sure what equipment you'll need, how much fuel and water to carry and what meals to prepare? Feeling just a teensy bit nervous about doing it on your own and wishing you had an expert to help you with trip preparation?

Well, here's the answer to a prayer that even St Christopher, the Patron Saint of Safe Travel, would give his blessings to!

Leading touring & training company Global Gypsies has introduced a new “Preparing for Remote Area Expeditions Package”, or “PREP”. Whether you're going 4WD'ing on the Canning Stock Route, or to Rudall River, the Kimberley, Tanami Desert, Great Australian Bight or other outback destinations, or if you're planning a leisurely loop around Australia in your caravan, planning and preparation are by far the most important parts of your DIY journey.

“Good planning and preparation can make or break a trip,” says Global Gypsies Director Jeremy Perks. “With the economic meltdown, thousands of people are doing their own thing this year and will be heading off into remote areas in their 4WD's, camper trailers or caravans. However, we are concerned that many of these bush travelers will be ill-prepared.

“To help these modern-day explorers plan for their big adventure, we've introduced a unique personal consultancy service to answer all the curly questions and give travelers peace of mind. We'll advise on what resources they will need, what equipment they should take, what skills they should have and what training they may need. We'll even do an informal vehicle inspection and suggest what vehicle accessories may be required to undertake the specific challenges of their itinerary. Each one-on-one consultation will be tailor-made and individually costed.”

Before each Global Gypsies outback tagalong tour, the company runs a comprehensive Pre-Departure Workshop. “This new advisory service is a personalised Pre Departure Workshop for travelers doing their own thing,” Jeremy says. “We will come to your home and share our vast knowledge of travel in remote areas and provide one-on-one advice on how to prepare for your big trip. You'll receive packing lists, vehicle check lists, destination advice and safety tips. This new private consultancy service will help travelers enjoy their DIY journeys safely, comfortably and with confidence.”
